DETAILED ACTION

Election of Species

1. This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The following species election is required:

- Applicant is required to elect a single formulation of a functional powdery product formulation by electing for each component:
 - (i) specify the vitamin glycoside(s) in the powdery product as recited by claims 1-4;
 - (ii) specify whether the carrier(s) in the powdery product as recited by claims 1 are (ii-a) saccharides; (ii-b) proteins; (ii-c) synthetic polymers or (ii-d) a specific combination of saccharides, proteins and synthetic polymers as recited by claims 5-6, and furthermore:
 - elect with specificity the carrier(s) in the elected powdery product as recited by claims 6-8
 - (iii) specify the form of the carrier as recited by instant claim 9;
 - (iv) specify whether one or more pharmaceutically acceptable substances are (iv-a) absent or (iv-b) present in the dermatological agent as recited by claim 11 and, if present, identify with specificity the one or more pharmaceutically acceptable substances present in the dermatological agent as recited by claims 12-17;

(v) specify the form of the external dermatological agent.

Specifically, Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Applicant is required to elect a single functional powdery product from the numerous products encompassed by the generic claims by defining, for example, the vitamin glycoside(s), carrier(s) and pharmaceutically acceptable substance(s) that make up the elected functional powder product. Each element contained in the elected species must be defined with specificity such that, upon Applicant's election of species, the result must describe a single invention with specificity. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

2. The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner: claims 3-4, 6-8 and 11-17. The following claim(s) are generic: claims 1-2, 5, 9-10 and 18-20.

3. The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reason:

- each carrier, vitamin glycoside, and pharmaceutically acceptable substance is distinct, having distinct properties and attributes, and thus various combinations of said components provide distinct products which lack a common special technical feature..

There is an examination and search burden for these patentably distinct species due to their mutually exclusive characteristics. The species require a different field of search (e.g., searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries); and/or the prior art applicable to one species would not likely be applicable to another species; and/or the species are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

The election of the species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the election of species requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected species.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the species unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other species.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141.
